GRAND RAPIDS TAKES 2ND GAME FROM MERRILL

About six hundred Merrill fans witnessed the game at Merrill Sunday, which resulted in Grand Rapids shutting out Merrill 1 to 0. It was expected that Merrill would clean our team up when they got us on their home grounds but they were not quite fast enough and Grand Rapids had an easy victory. Both teams played fast ball from start to finish, the game lasting but an hour and a half.

Brennan had several chances in the field and made every one good as well as Ditzler who went back and got a hard one as usual. Pelot made a pretty throw from right field cutting off a run at home plate. Magnesser caught a fine game and Foster's arm was never better and he allowed Merrill but two hits, while our boys got Van Patter for seven. Foster struck out three men and Van Patter one. Umpire Sullivan was as fair as was admitted by the Merrill players as well as the fans.

Next Sunday Grand Rapids plays Berlin, a very fast team, at Grand Rapids.

The line up at Merrill was as follows:

Grand Rapids	Merrill
Shriner	3b Summerville
Ditzler	1f Mayo
Pragasser	c Abel
Kramer	1st Knatz
Nelson	ss Tatbot
Brennan	cf Schram
Corrigan	2b Fries
Pelot	rf Barnett
Porter	p Van Patter

The matter of building a new reservoir was referred to the committee on general business with instructions to go ahead with the work. The city employees were instructed to cease leaving the city property to private individuals.

Deceased was born at Moenaw, Province Regonwader, Kreis Pommer, on Feb. 28th, 1829, and came to this country in 1857, settling at Milwaukee for a number of years, after which he came to this county and has been a resident here for about fifty years, all of which time he has lived in the town of Seneca where he owned a fine farm which he cleared by his industry.

Mr. Jackson was an honest man, a good neighbor and he has many friends who sincerely mourn his demise. He is survived by three sons, Martin and Wm. of Seneca and Henry of Milwaukee. A funeral services on Monday from the home services being held by Rev. Nounnison and the remains were laid at rest in the Sigel cemetery.

Alumni Meeting Tonight.

That there will be a definite alumni organization is now practically certain, at least such is the opinion entertained by a number of the most interested ones. During the past week a comparatively large number of graduates have been informed concerning the proposed organization and it seems to be the general opinion that the move is indeed a wise one.

The success or failure of this undertaking lies with each and every high school graduate in Grand Rapids. As the success of a football team depends upon the team work of the men, so will the work of the alumni organization depend upon the cooperation of those who are to be the members.

It is hoped that the meeting tonight will be attended by a large and enthusiastic assemblage, each willing to do a part in the work of starting and carrying on an alumni. Signed A Graduate.

Band Meets Defeat.

The game of baseball on Sunday last between the band and the Elks, resulted in a victory for the latter by a score of 12 to 4. The band had it all fixed up with Mayor Wheeler to umpire, but he was called out of the city and could not officiate, the result being that Frank Tielnor umpired the game, and the Elks won.

There were very few sensational plays made by either side and the team work done by both sides was conspicuous by its absence.

YOUNG FARMER BOY COMMITTS SUICIDE

Frank Sokolowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sokolowski of the town of Sigel, committed suicide on Tuesday by taking his own life, leaving a note of explanation on that day.

The facts leading up to the tragedy are somewhat as follows: Frank Sokolowski had been to Vesper to attend a dance on Sunday night, and while there had intemperately smoked an intoxicant and later when he returned home his mother had called him for being out late and misbehaving himself, and the consequence was that on Monday night he took some paria given and left the house.

His absence was discovered in the morning and a search was made for him and he was later found near a spring about two miles from his home. He was about unconscious at the time and had been vomiting from the effects of the poison he had taken. The physician was summoned from this city and attended the boy and did what he could to relieve his sufferings but the poison had had too much time and nothing the physician could do would help him very much and he died about noon.

YOUNG FARMER BOY COMMITTS SUICIDE

Frank Sokoloski, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sokoloski of the town of Sigel, committed suicide on Tuesday by taking Paris green, death having occurred about noon on that day.

The facts leading up to the tragedy are somewhat as follows as near as can be learned. Young Sokoloski had been to Vesper to attend a dance on Sunday night, and while there had indulged somewhat in intoxicants, and later when he returned home his mother had scolded him for being out late and misbehaving himself, and the consequence was that on Monday night he took some Paris green and left the house.

His absence was discovered in the morning and a search was made for him and he was later found near a spring about two miles from his home. He was almost unconscious at the time and had been vomiting from the effects of the poison he had taken. Dr. Edgman was summoned from this city and attended the boy and did what he could to relieve his sufferings but the poison had had too much time and nothing the physician could do would help him very much and he died about noon.

You can see that I'm not a mob, because if you're your friends, you can help me out if you could. Now, Bill, you were courting a funeral a good while, and I'll try any of your nonsense here, you'll win.

The Ranger captain was out early the morning after his arrival in Alex. and was following the tracks of the mob. There were following the tracks of Joe Wilkerson and his son Ben and to the homes of John and Arthur Greener. In Joe Wilkerson's lot he found a part of a rope, the remainder of which had been cut off. It matched precisely with the rope that was found in the Humphreys'—the white ends being the same as the Humphreys'. The Wilkersons and one of the Greenhaws were taken into custody for the same and other arrests followed as the criminals were tracked home.

The testimony brought out the facts that the Humphreys had known of an illicit still by the name of Ole Polk Weeks and a man named John. Also that they had known of John Greenhaw stealing cattle and hogs, and that John Greenhaw had once drawn a gun on elder Humphrey, who had refused to take away from him the money for killing him and for letting the community a service, and things, added to the other provocations a named, had made the Humphreys sufficiently unpopular in a neighborhood like the cedar bottom to warrant the taking of the

The Ranger caught up him keenly and said that if he did not live 30 days, unless he confessed the truth, he would be the first of the load on his conscience. He just half that time; not, however, until fully confessed.

The efforts of the men believed to be concerned as principals in the crime, to get their consciences at ease, sometimes wary, times crudely absurd and always fruitless mesh of fact that was weaving and linking about them became daily more tightly more impossible to tear away. Finally came to pass that three of these "culprits" were brought to the bar, and the evidence confessed fully, sacrificing their comrades under the law, to save themselves. Eleven including these three, were brought to trial.

In the final trial John and Arthur Grier and Polk were tried. They were not only not cowardly traitors, were given their chance in exchange for their evidence that sought associates to the penitentiary for much shorter periods than they would have earned the tree and tied the ropes, it took too long, making it necessary to clear the Humphreys to be bent upon clearing the ground. SYNOPSIS.
The story is told from the point of view of Nina Carrington, a girl who has been in the hospital for some time. She tells of her life before and after the accident, and of the people who were close to her. The story is a tragedy, and it is told in a simple, direct manner.

CHAPTER XXVII.
Who Is Nina Carrington?
The four days, from Saturday to the following Tuesday, we lived, or existed, in a state of the most dreadful suspense. We ate only when Liddy brought in a tray, and then very little of the story, and we were besieged by newspaper men.

On Tuesday, then, I sent for the car and prepared to go out. As I walked at the porte-cochere, I saw the under-gardener, an inefficient, grumpy, half-witted man, trimming hedges near the house. The day detective was watching him, sitting on the carriage block. When he saw me, he got up.

"Miss Innes," he said, looking off at his hat, "do you know where Alex, the gardener, is?"
"Why, no. Isn't he here?" I asked.
"He has been gone some yesterday afternoon. Have you employed him long?"
"Only a couple of weeks."

"Is he efficient? A capable man?"
"I hardly know," I said vaguely.
"The place looks all right, and I know very little about such things. I know much more about boxes of roses than bushes of them."

"This man," pointing to the assistant, "says Alex isn't a gardener. That he doesn't know anything about plants."

"That's very strange," I said, thinking hard. "Why, he came to me from the frays, where he is Europe."
"Exactly." The detective smiled.
"Every man who cuts grass isn't a gardener, Miss Innes, and just now it is our policy to believe every person around here a rascal until he proves to be the other thing."

Warner came up with the car then, and the conversation stopped. As he helped me in, however, the detective said something further.
"Not a word of this to Alex, if he comes back," he said cautiously.
I went first to Dr. Walker's. I was tired of beating about the bush, and I felt that the key to Halsey's disappearance was here at Chasnova, in spite of Mr. Jamieson's theories.

The doctor was in. He came at once to the door of his consulting room, and there was no mask of cordiality in his manner.
"Please come in," he said curtly.
"I shall stay here, I think, doctor," I did not like his face or his manner; there was a subtle change in both. He had thrown off the air of friendliness, and I thought, too, that he looked nervous and haggard.

On the way I thought, and thought hard.
"Nina Carrington, Nina Carrington," the roar and rush of the wheels seemed to sing the words. "Nina Carrington, N. C." And I then knew, knew as surely as if I had seen the thing. There had been in N. C. on the left side belonging to the woman with the gift face, those simple all seemed. Mattie Halsey had been Nina Carrington. It was the same thing she had told Halsey that had taken him faintly to Dr. Walker's office, and from there perhaps to his death. If we could find the woman, we might find what had become of Halsey.

We were almost at Richfield now, so I kept on. My mind was not on my errand there now. It was back with Halsey on that memorable night. What was it he had said to Louise, that had sent her up to Sunnyville, half wild with fear for him? I made up my mind, as his car drew up before the Tate cottage, that I would see Louise. If I had to break into the house at night.

Almost exactly the same scene as before greeted my eyes at the cottage. Mrs. Tate, the baby carriage in the path, the children at the swing—all were the same.
She came forward to meet me, and I noticed that some of the anxious lines had gone out of her face. She looked young, almost pretty.
"I am glad you have come back," she said. "I think I will have to be honest and give you back your money."

"Why?" I asked. "Has the mother come?"
"No, but some one came and paid the bill for you a month ago. She talked to him for a long time, but when I asked him afterward he didn't know her name."
"A young woman?"

On Tuesday, then, I sent for the car and prepared to go out. As I walked at the porte-cochere, I saw the under-gardener, an inefficient, grumpy, half-witted man, trimming hedges near the house. The day detective was watching him, sitting on the carriage block. When he saw me, he got up.

Warner came up with the car then, and the conversation stopped. As he helped me in, however, the detective said something further.
"Not a word of this to Alex, if he comes back," he said cautiously.
I went first to Dr. Walker's. I was tired of beating about the bush, and I felt that the key to Halsey's disappearance was here at Chasnova, in spite of Mr. Jamieson's theories.

SOCIALISTS HOLD STATE CONVENTION

Platform Would Have Laws Constructed by Referendum.
ARE FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE

W. A. Jacobs Heads the State as Candidate for Governor—Want Senate and Supreme Court Abolished.

If the Social Democrats of Wisconsin could have their way all state and national constitutions would be abolished, the supreme court would go out of business and all laws would stand supreme until they had been "reversed" by a referendum vote of the people.

A provision of this kind was the principal addition to the platform of 1908, which, as a whole, was adopted by the Social Democrats at the state convention in Milwaukee. In addition to this the party placed itself on record as being in favor of woman's suffrage, the money the most important changes made in the old platform before it was adopted.

W. A. Jacobs of Racine will be the candidate for governor, as his name was the only one presented to the convention for that office.

The platform, in addition to these changes, included the old plank providing for old age pensions, nationalization of the trusts, ownership of railroads, telegraph and telephones, loaning of money by the general government to cities on their municipal bonds, opposing coal labor, life insurance and other insurance to be organized by the general government, in favor of free schools, for reforestation, more farm schools, that the state advance money to settlers to buy land and do other things, opposing summary laws and for a graduated and increased inheritance tax.

Resolutions adopted by the convention demand the abolition of the upper house of congress, the publication of public school textbooks by the state, home rule for Milwaukee, pledge party of university extension, record deep interest in conservation of natural resources, pledge party to promote spirit of cooperation between city and farm workers and recommend state aid for roads and denounce high cost of living.

The following ticket was placed in nomination:
For governor—W. A. Jacobs.
For lieutenant governor—Henry Prush, Milwaukee; William Kaufmann, Racine; C. B. Whitnall, Milwaukee.
For secretary of state—Gustav A. Herring, Washington.
For state treasurer—C. B. Swanson, Superior; J. E. Harris, Sturgeon Bay; Jacob Hummel, Milwaukee.
For attorney general—Adolph Hunsbuckman, Milwaukee; Oscar Rademaker, Madison; G. T. Thome, Oshkosh.

For insurance commissioner—H. W. Hilsdorf, Milwaukee; F. Althen, Two Rivers.
For United States senator—Emil Seidel, Milwaukee; John C. Kleist, Milwaukee.
For chairman of the Social Democratic state committee—Victor L. Berger, Milwaukee.
For secretary of the Social Democratic central committee—C. B. Whitnall, Milwaukee.
The names above were placed in nomination to be voted upon at a referendum of the party.

Victor L. Berger will be again placed at the head of the state central committee and C. B. Whitnall will be the secretary of that body. The other members will be named by the state executive committee for a referendum vote.

The way some people talk, one would think that the farmer has forfeited his right to existence, by getting out of debt and laying by a bit of money. When you take the boys to the circus next Wednesday take his mother and sisters along also to help keep the boys out of danger.
The crops are beginning to look "praty sick" for want of rain. Add worms and the crop outlook is anything but bright. One thing is certain, that unless our birds are better protected the farmer will soon have to go to the business for the insect pests are increasing every year.

What a Summer Cold May Do.
A summer cold if neglected is just as apt to develop into bronchitis or pneumonia as at any other season. Do not neglect it. Take Foley's Honey and Tar from this. It loosens the cough, soothes the inflamed air passages, and helps the system to get rid of the cold. J. E. Daily.

Stomach Troubles.
Many remarkable cures of stomach troubles have been effected by Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. One man who had spent over two thousand dollars for medicine and treatment was cured by a few boxes of these tablets. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at Daly's drug store.

A Democratic Capital.
Here in Washington all men are equal. Even the diplomats who come here from abroad soon get the spirit. They go skating and horseback riding without ceremony. They have the same rights as everybody else, but no more. And the result usually is picturesque and cosmopolitan. Exceedingly democratic and informal in the capital of the United States.—Washington Post.
